Sanyog Gupta Voyages

Luxury Destination Management Company

As we have evolved as a company, we have come to realise that our love lies not in booking tour packages, but in showcasing the unique experiences across the nations we serve. We realised that there are many secret corners of our world, rare moments, mysteries and stories.

Our company owned by a family, but run professionally. We have hierarchical systems which are driven by our core family values. We have come to understand we do not want to be the largest company globally. We have never tried to be the richest or the most influential. I say, we just want to be the bestest in what we do.

We are a family tradition for over three decades that have been highlighting this part of the planet. All over Indian sub-continent, we have grown to become a popular, valued and autonomous DMC providing the finest cultural experiences, personal immersions and natural wonders. We are here to build stories for our clients, tales of love, of wonderful excitement. We are proud of our past and its legacy.

THIS IS THE TIME
THIS IS THE PLACE
THIS IS WEST

A person wearing a colorful patterned shirt and green pants is sitting in a red wooden boat on a river. The person is holding a long wooden pole. The river is filled with many birds, likely seagulls, flying overhead and on the water. The background shows a hazy, distant shoreline.

WEST BENGAL

IT ALL STARTS WITH KUBHALO

You may well be sipping a cup of Darjeeling as you read this – tea may be West Bengal's most famous export, but it certainly isn't its only attraction: this teeming Indian state is brimming with culture.

Capital city Kolkata (formerly known as Calcutta) is dotted with grand designs, including Taj-Mahal-tribute the Victoria Memorial, a shrine to art and national history.

Just outside this urban hub, the striking, 19th-century Dakshineswar Kali temple is a marvel of intricate domes and spires, resting near the banks of the Ganges.

Follow the river to the Bay of Bengal, where glittering coastal views stretch for miles, or travel north to the huge tea plantations in Darjeeling for a trip on the Unesco-protected railway (of Wes Anderson fame) through the Himalayan foothills.

And, if it's in-depth exploring you're after, our range of Indian adventures take you up, up and away into West Bengal's lofty climes...

The Elgin Fairlawn, Kolkata

Housed in a 1783 building with a colonial-era vibe, the memorabilia-filled iconic heritage hotel has been shaped by the hands and minds of generations of families whose memories and influences have contributed to the unique heritage. Since 1783, The Elgin Fairlawn has stood on the junction of Madge Lane and Sudder Street. This is the heart of the most cosmopolitan and vibrant part of the city.

It is within two minutes walk from the famous New Market area, a 100 years old market. Heritage buildings like the Indian Museum, Victoria Memorial and the enthralling Park Street are just beyond.

Raajkutir Swabhumi, Kolkata

Raajkutir is a metaphor for a figment of our imagination. It is a time capsule that endeavours to take you back in time. Into the enlightenment called the Bengal Renaissance.

It was set in the mid-nineteenth century until the time our country attained Independence. While it is an inspired period piece, it is also a boutique hotel, very suited for the global traveller and complete with contemporary amenities including an all-day dining restaurant, spa, shopping arcade, café cum deli and an artisans gallery.

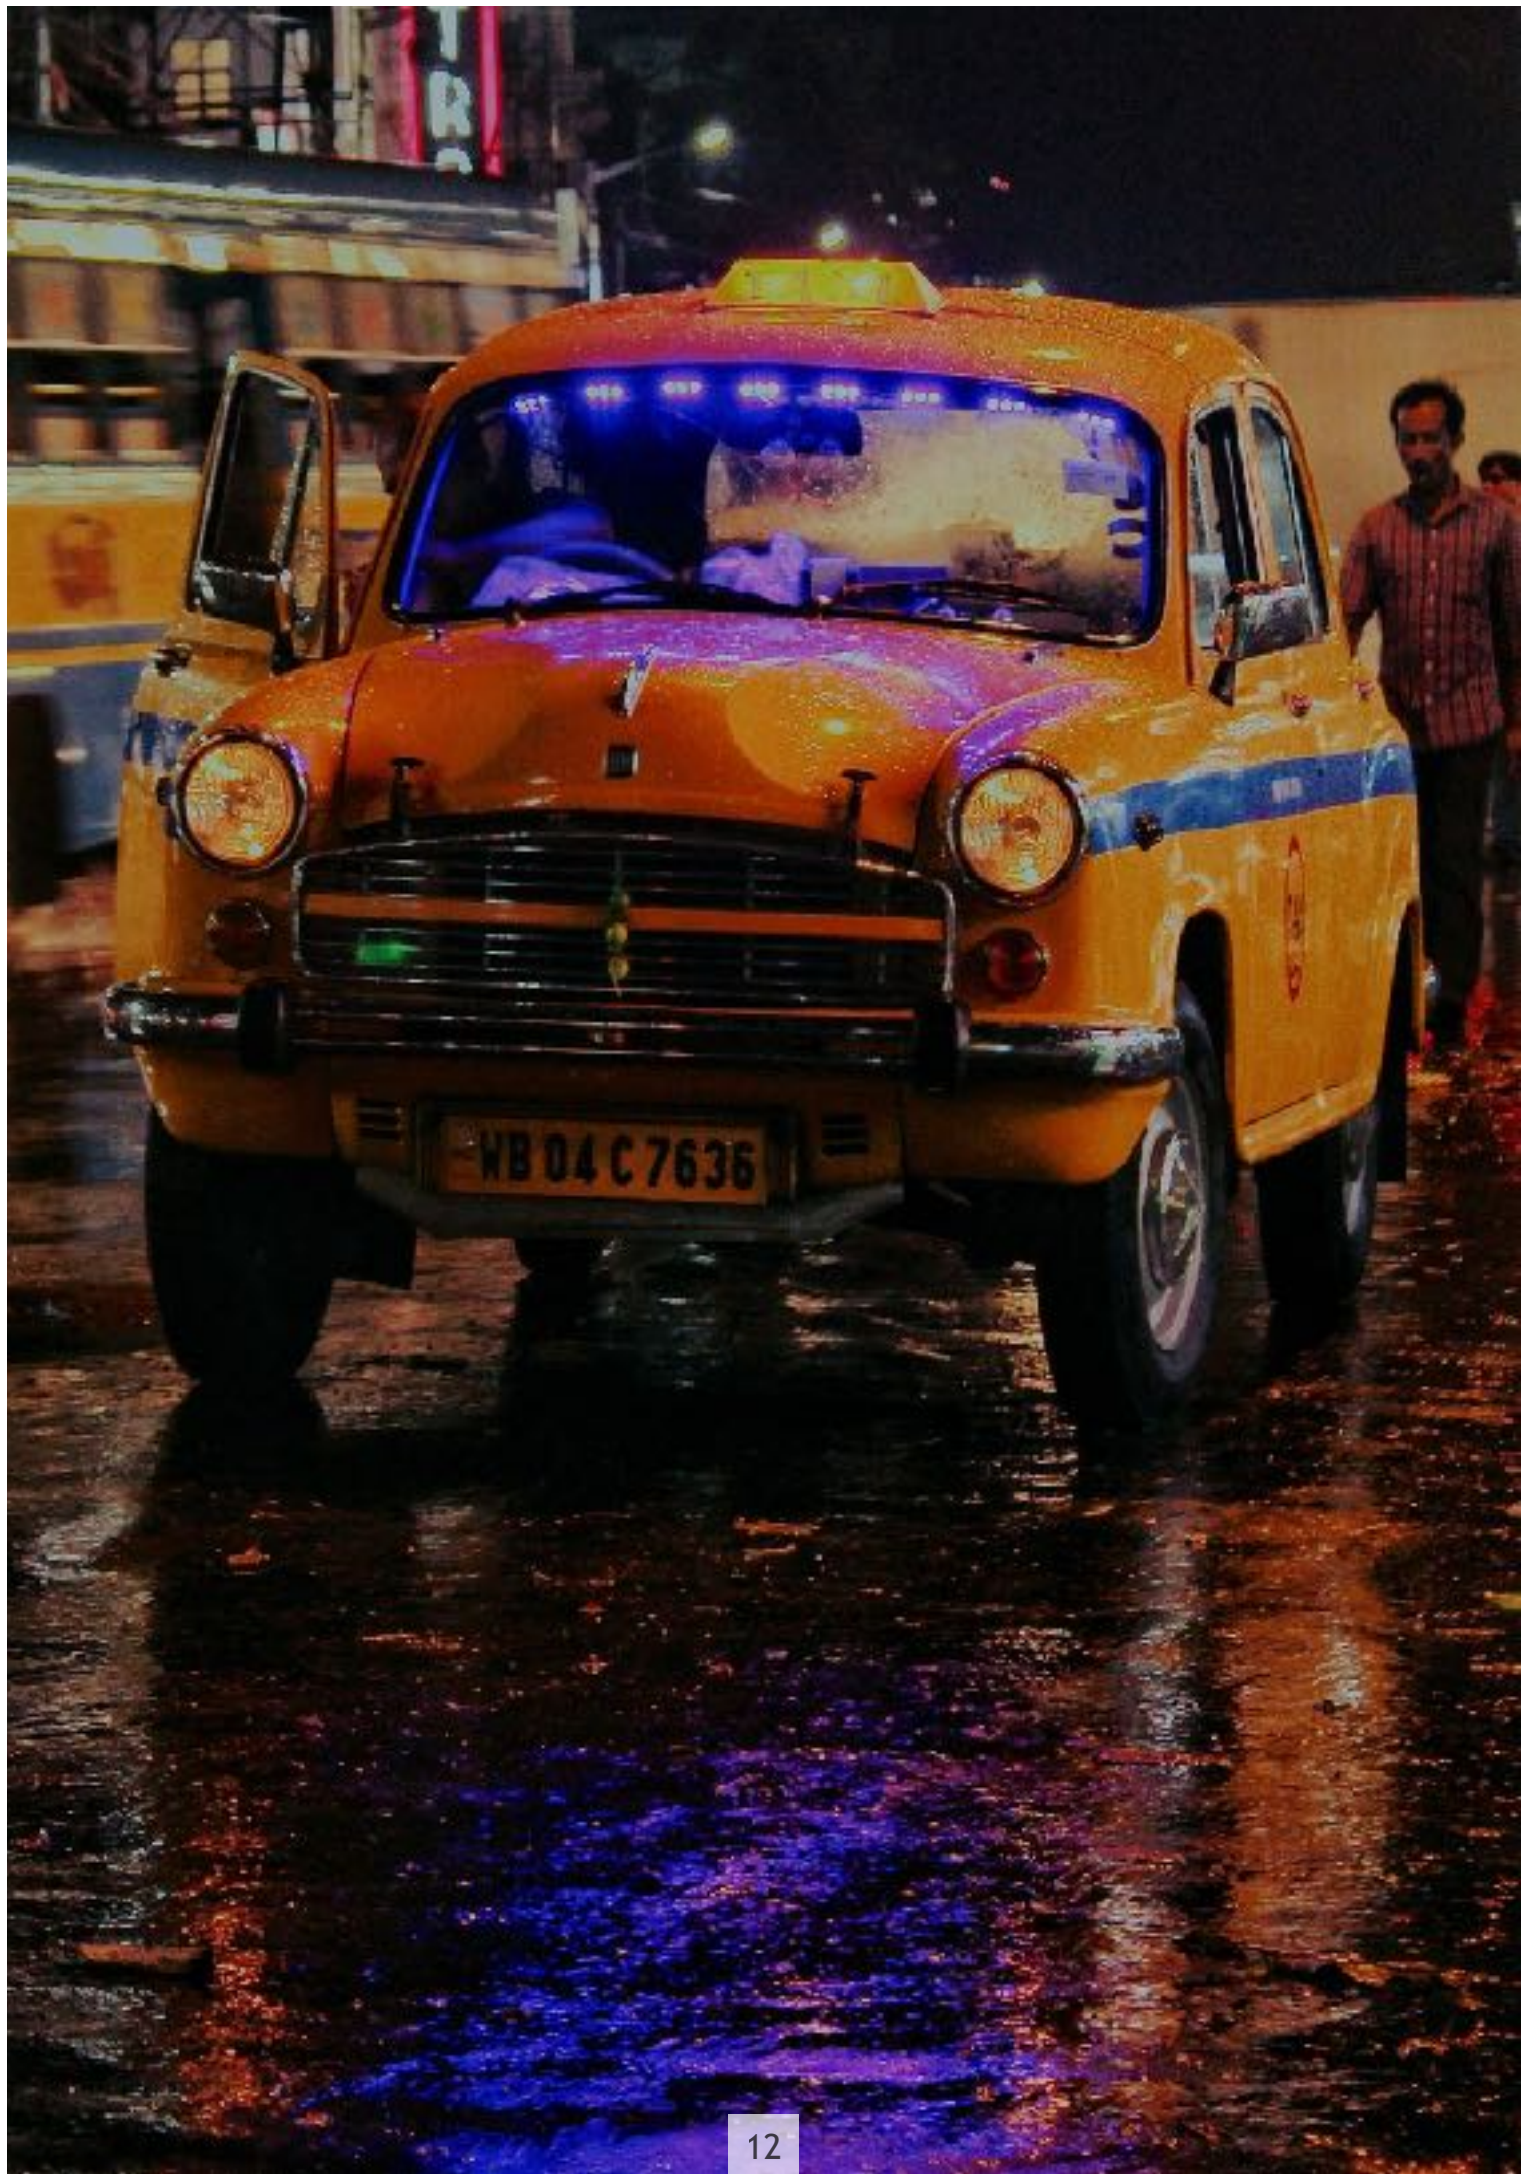

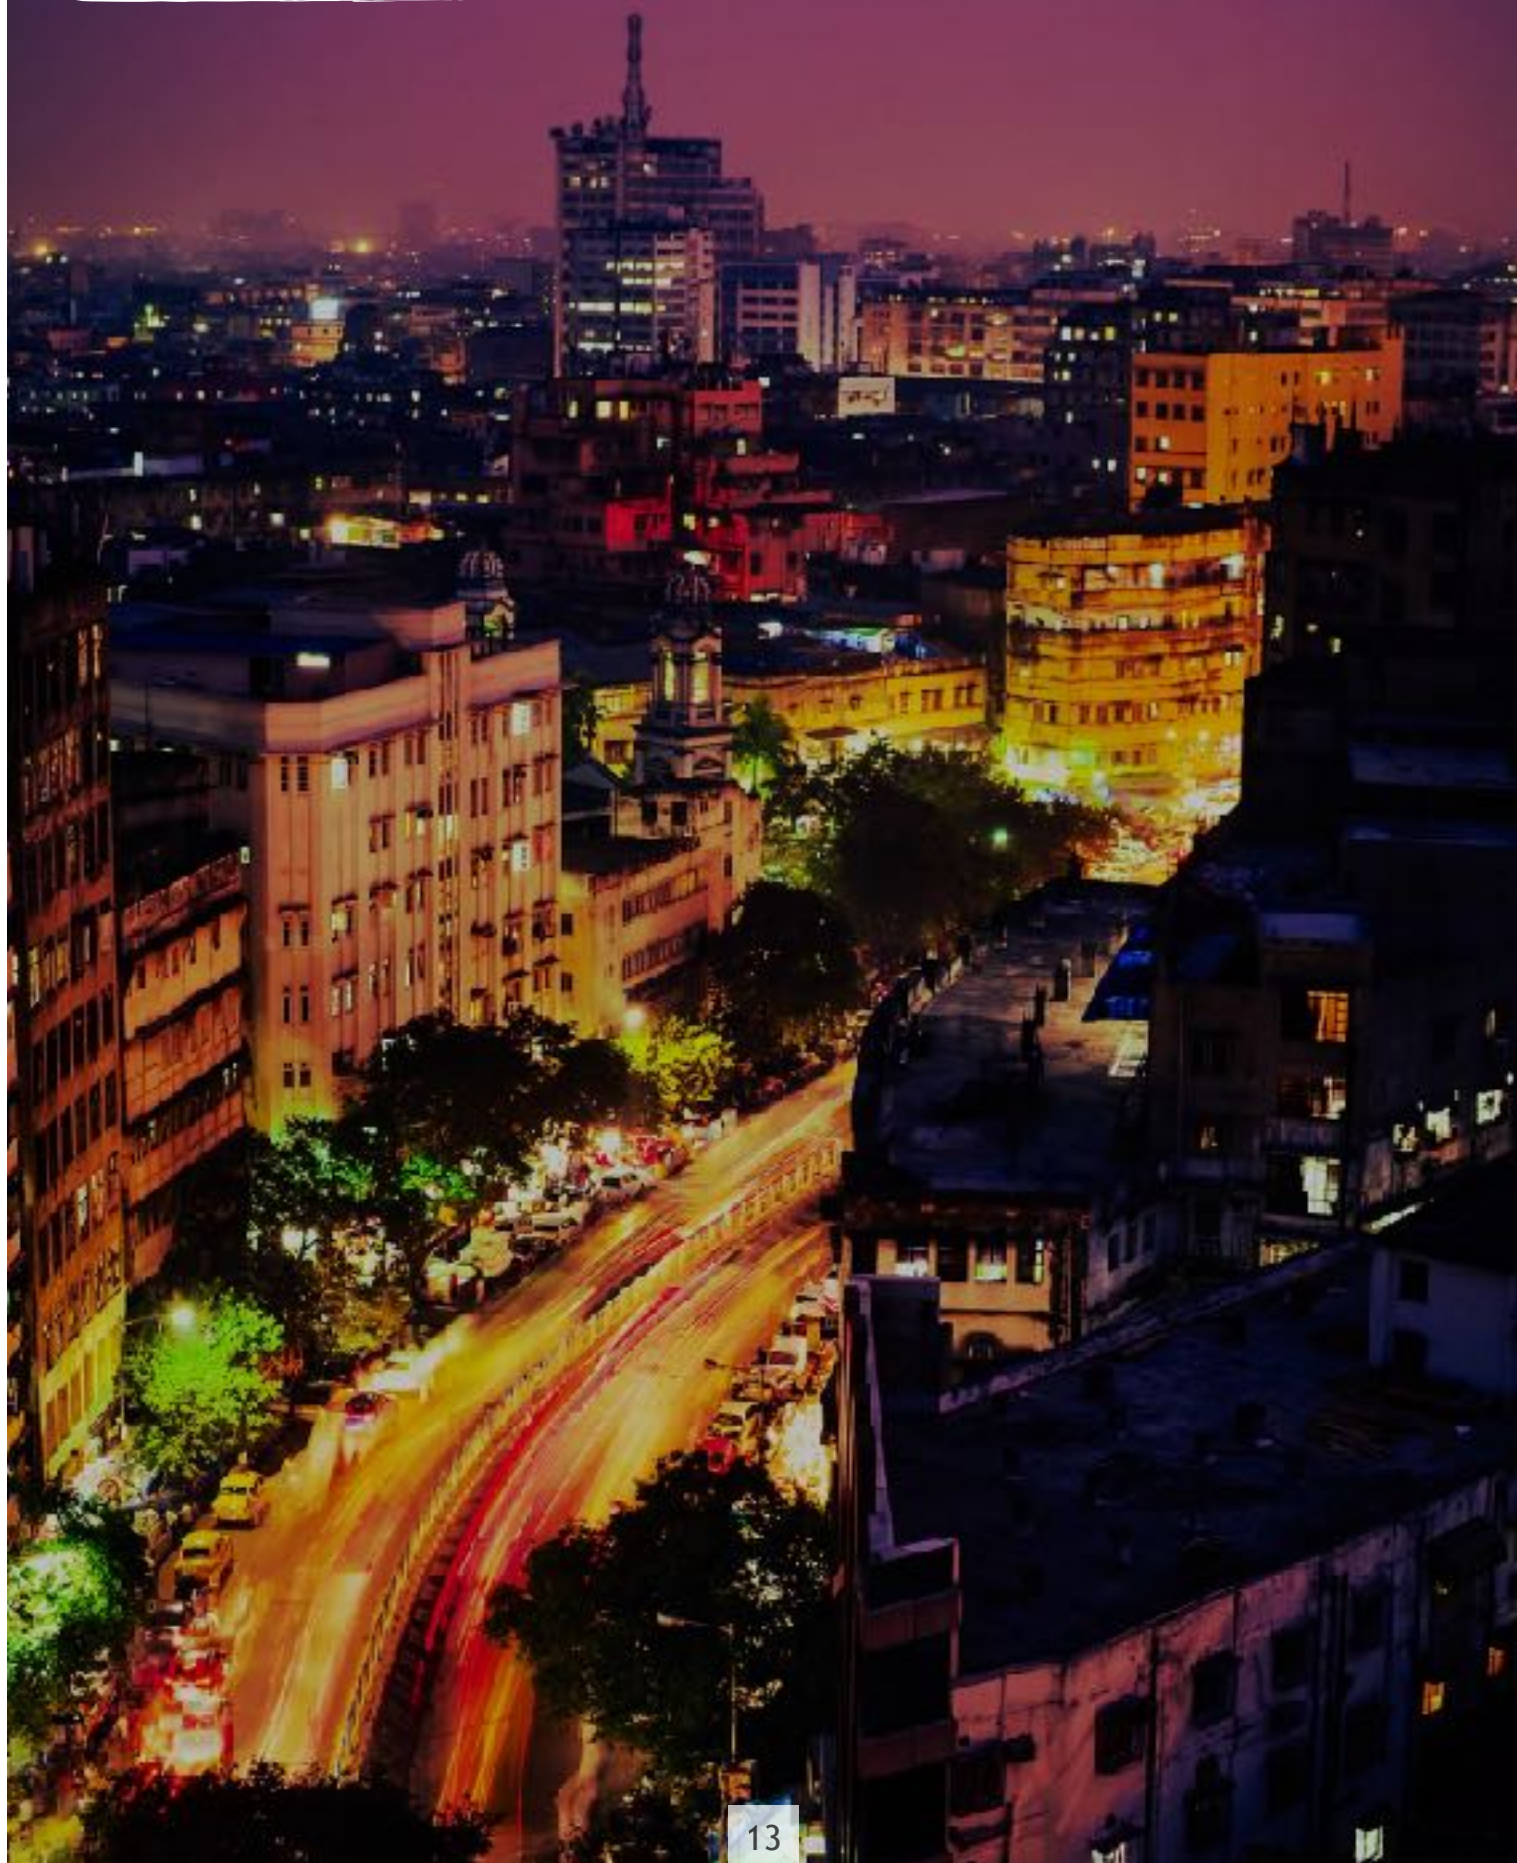

Kolkata - The Capital

Kolkata is India's second-largest city and the face of West Bengal. It is an interminably progressing celebration of human existence. This dynamic 350-year-old city situated on India's Eastern Coast is the capital of West Bengal. It flourishes as the aesthetic, social, and intellectual capital of India.

Also known as the 'City of Joy', Kolkata is overflowing with liveliness. One can expect to be charmed by the cheap cost of things, the hand-pulled-rickshaws, wandering avenues, and a countless assortment of desserts.

EXPLORE

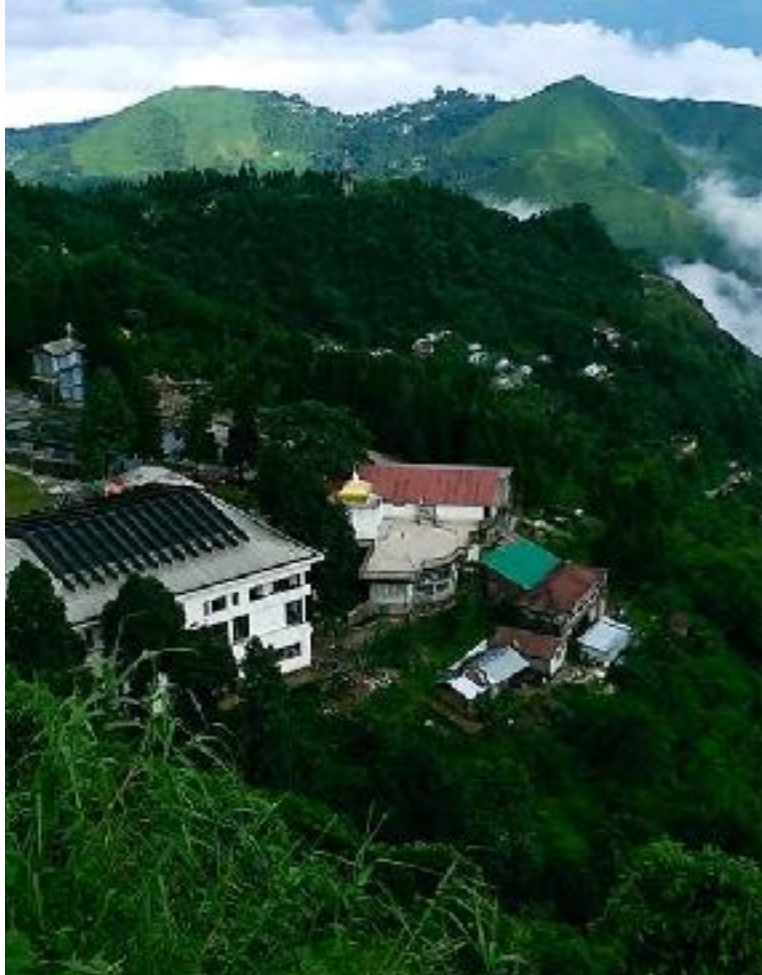

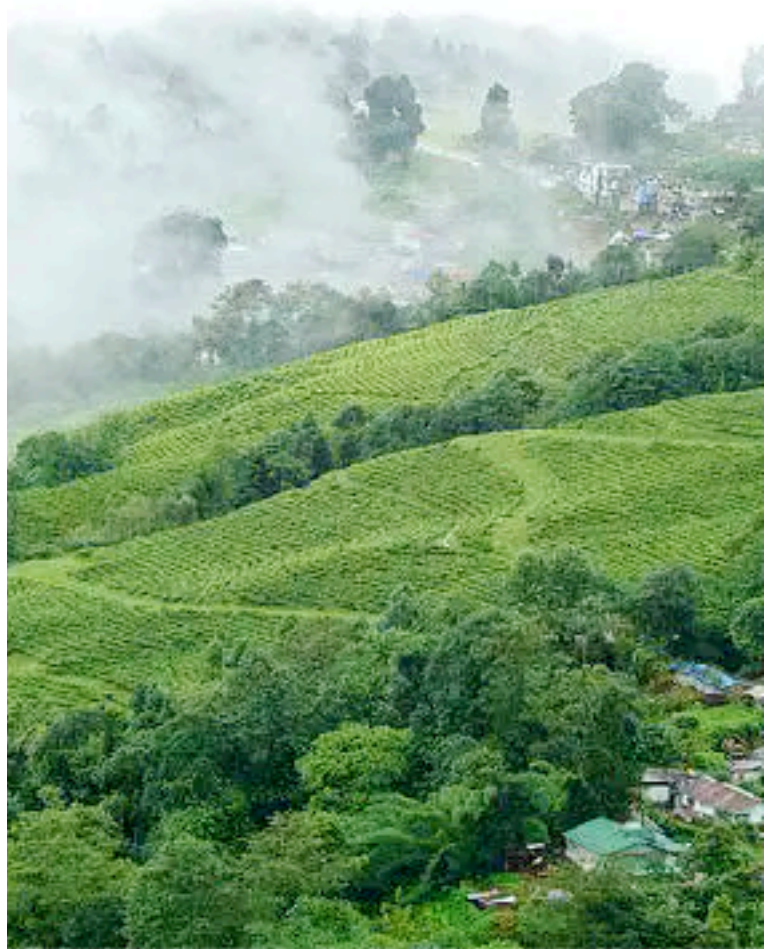

Darjeeling

Darjeeling conjures visions of snow peaks, serenity of vibrant green hills steeped in splendour, a land of breathtaking beauty crowned by the majestic Himalayas. Darjeeling is one of the most magnificent hill resorts in the world. This heavenly retreat is bathed in hues of every shade.

Flaming red rhododendrons, sparkling white magnolias, miles of undulating hillsides covered with emerald green tea bushes, the exotic forests of silver fir - all under the blanket of a brilliant azure sky dappled with specks of clouds, compellingly confounds Darjeeling as the QUEEN OF HILL STATIONS.

The crest of Kanchenjunga shining in the first dawn light truly supports the title.

Darjeeling beckons thousands today for a leisurely respite from the bustle of the madding crowd. The traveler - whether a tourist or a trekker, an ornithologist or a photographer, a botanist or an artist - will find in Darjeeling an experience which will remain etched in ones memory - forever.

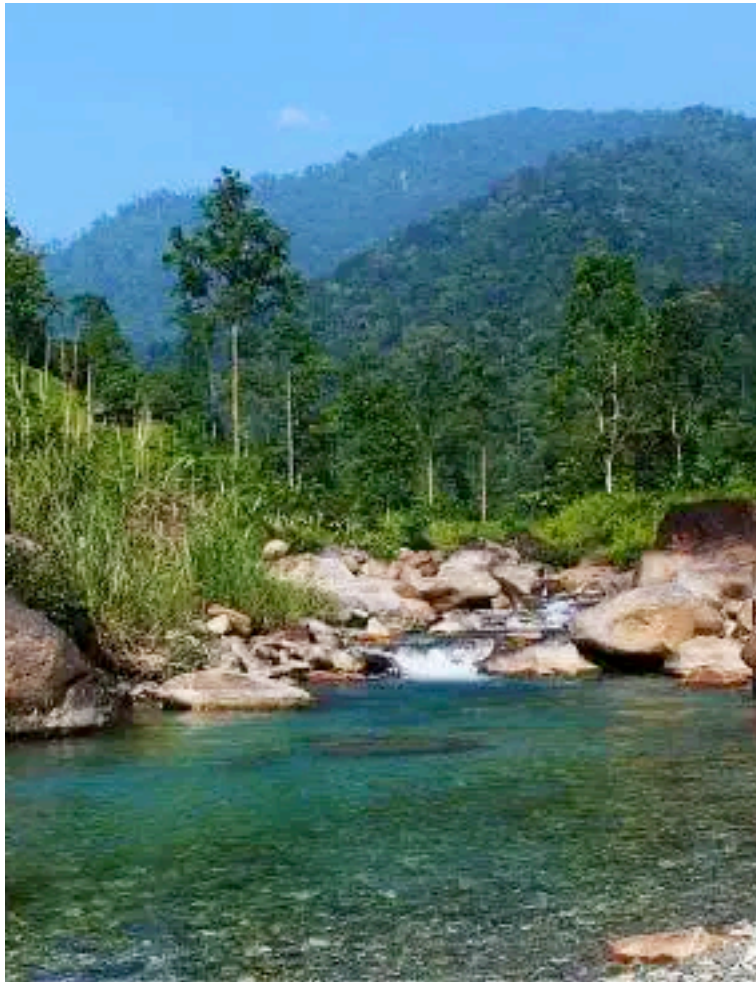

Kurseong

Kurseong is a hill station (and sub-divisional town) situated in Darjeeling District of West Bengal, India. Located at an altitude of 1458 meters (4864 ft), Kurseong is just 30 km from Darjeeling. It has a pleasant climate throughout the year and the winters are not as severe as Darjeelings.

The local name of Kurseong is "Kharsang" which in the Lepcha language means "Land of White Orchids". Kurseong is about 47 kms from Siliguri and is connected to the city by road and the Darjeeling Himalayan Railway. The nearest airport is at Bagdogra.

The Land of the White Orchids nearest major railway station is New Jalpaiguri (NJP) railway station, which is about 53 km from Kurseong. The town is based mainly on schools and tourism. The best times to visit Kurseong are between March end and May and between the end of August and October. The Chogyal (Monarch) of Sikkim ceded Kurseong to the British Empire in 1835.

Kalimpong

Kalimpong is a beautiful place of great attraction. This sleepy little town situated at an altitude of 1,200 mtrs, some 50 kms to the east of Darjeeling. It once used to be the hub of the trans-Himalayan trade between India and Tibet when merchants used to ferry commerce by mule caravan over the Jelepela pass on the Sikkim-Tibet border.

The places to visit are Kalimpong Arts and Craft Center for handicraft goods; Tharpa Choling Monastery, a repository of old scriptures, and documents; Thongsa (Bhutan) Monastery, the oldest in the area; Dharmodaya Vihar, a Nepalese Buddhist Temple; Parnami Mandir and Mangal Dham; Durpin Danda from where the mountain ranges of Sikkim, including Jelepela, Tiger Hill and the confluence of the Relli, Riang and Tista rivers can be viewed; Zong Dog Palri Fo Brang Monastery at Durpin Danda; deolo View Point for magnificent views; and Kalimpong famous flower nurseries.

Sandakphu

Sandakphu is the highest peak in the state of West Bengal, India. It is the highest point of the Singalila Ridge in Darjeeling district on the West Bengal-Nepal border. The peak is located at the edge of the Singalila National Park and has a small village on the summit with a few hostels. Four of the five highest peaks in the world, Everest, Kangchenjunga, Lhotse and Makalu can be seen from its summit.

From Sandakphu, the best view of the mountain Kanchenjunga is possible, which is known as the Sleeping Buddha or the Sleeping Shiva.

Sandakphu, situated at a height of 3636 mtrs above sea level is a true paradise for all adventure lovers. Trek to the highest point on this hill station and you will get the never seen before views of the Himalayan Range. A long stretch of Himalayas starting from Bhutan till Mt. Everest is visible. River Teesta flows through Sandakphu at quite a pace.

Dooars

The Dooars or Duars are the foothills of the eastern Himalayas in North-East India around Bhutan. Duar means door and the region forms the gateway to Bhutan from India. There are 18 passages or gateways through which the Bhutanese people can communicate with the people living in the plains.

This region is divided by the Sankosh River into the Eastern and the Western Dooars. The Western Dooars is known as the Bengal Dooars and the Eastern Dooars as the Assam Dooars. Dooars is synonymous with the term Terai used in Nepal and northern India and form the only nitrate rich plain in India.

The Dooars region politically constitutes the plains of Darjeeling Himalayas, the whole of Jalpaiguri district and Alipurduar district. The altitude of Dooars area ranges from 90 to 1,750 m. Innumerable streams and rivers flow through these fertile plains from the mountains of Bhutan.

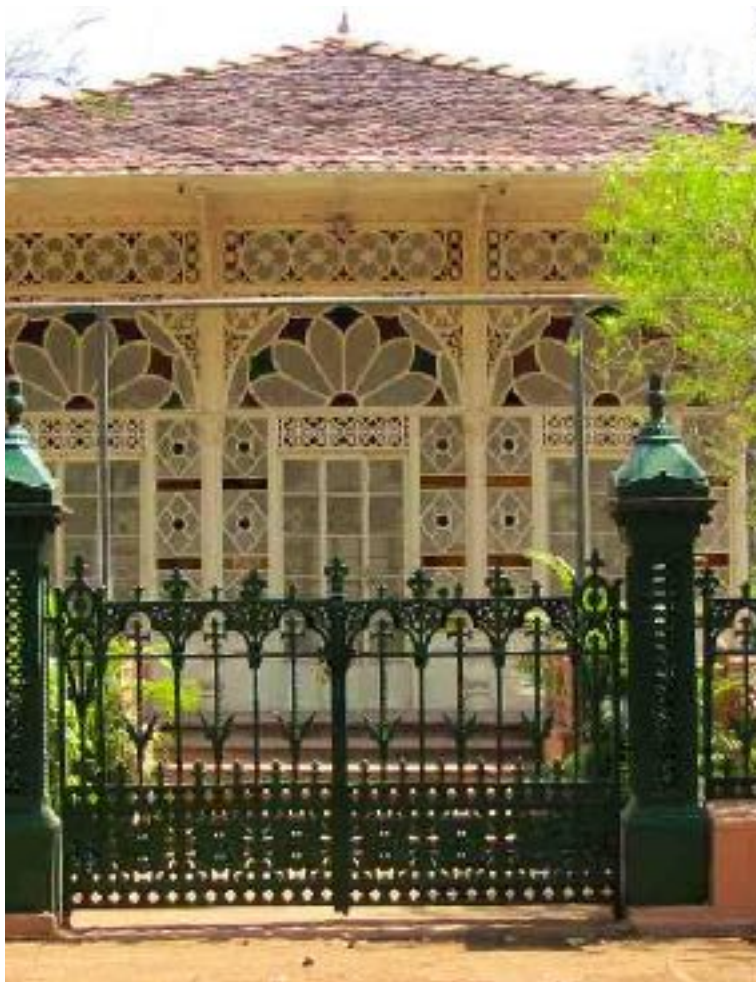

Jaldapara

The river Torsha flows through this rain forest sanctuary and have an area of 141 Sq.Km and altitude of 61 m. Jaldapara, the vast grassland with patches of riverine forests was declared a sanctuary in 1941 for protection of the great variety flora and fauna, particularly the one-horned rhinoceros, an animal threatened with extinction.

The Jaldapara Sanctuary covers 216 sq Km, is a mosaic of woods, grasslands, perennial streams, sandy river banks and extensive belts of tall grass. It contains a great diversity of flora and fauna of mixed deciduous forest, grasslands and river banks.

The Malangi River also flows nearby from east to west. Drained by rivers Torsa, Malangi, Hollong, Chirakhawa, Kalijhora, Sissamara, Bhaluka and Buri Torsa, the Sanctuary provides extensive grassland which is the last refuge to a wide variety of mammals, amphibians, reptiles and birds.

Santiniketan

Santiniketan is a popular tourist attraction of international repute. It is a famous cultural and heritage place of historical importance. Rabindranath lived here and penned many of his literary classics (namely Tagore songs, poems, novels etc.

The Santiniketan campus is adorned by splendid sculptures, frescoes, murals, and paintings of Rabindranath, Nandalal Bose, Ramkinkar, Binodbehari Mukhopadhyay and others. Birbhum District, where the Santiniketan is located, is also famous for its fairs and festivals like Poush Mela (December), Joydev Mela (January), Basanta Utsav (Holi) in March and the famous mystic Baul Singers.

Bengali New year and Rabindra Janmotsav, the birth day ceremony of Kobiguru Rabindra Nath are celebrated in the Bengali month of Boisakh with great cultural fervour.

Siliguri

Located on the banks of the Mahananda River and at the Himalayan foothills, Siliguri is endowed with natural scenic beauty and attracts numerous tourists all year round.

Views of the white snow-clad mountain peaks of the great Himalayan Ranges from Siliguri are not to be missed. The Kanchenjunga stadium and the Hong Kong market are famous tourist attractions.

Jaldapara Wildlife Sanctuary, located nearby, is also a great place to visit for a safari.

In Siliguri, there are several restaurants serving mouthwatering vegetarian and non-vegetarian food. The Chhang, a drink made of barley is a must try.

Digha

Digha is the most popular sea beach in West Bengal. It is located 187 km south-west of Kolkata. Digha has a low gradient with shallow sand beach that extends up to 7 km in length and has gentle rolling waves. The scenic beauty of this place is charming and alluring. The beach is girdled with casuarinas plantations along the coast which enhances its beauty.

Apart from beautification these trees also help in reducing erosion of the dunes. One can enjoy both the sunrise and sunset at the Digha sea beach. The sunset and sunrise reflecting the salty waters of the Bay of Bengal is something straight off an artist's canvas. The sea at Digha is calm and shallow for about a mile from the beach making it quite safe for swimming.

Digha originally known as Beerkul during the time of Warren Hastings, was discovered in the late 18th century by the British. It was mentioned as the "Brighton of the East" in one of the letters of Warren Hastings (1780 AD) to his wife.

Mandarmani

Mandarmani is a seaside resort village in East Midnapore district and at the northern end of the Bay of Bengal. It is one of the large and fast developing seaside resort village of West Bengal.

It is almost 180 Km from Kolkata Airport on the Kolkata - Digha route. Red crabs crawling around the 13 Km long beach is a special attraction of Mandarmani. It is argued to be the longest drivable (drive in) beach in India.

This is literally a virgin beach. The loneliness of the beach makes one meet nature in various forms. On the beach one will undoubtedly get the chance to feel the divinity and tranquility. If that's not enough to please your senses, then roll on the sand and listen to the waves crashing upon the shore, which will surely refresh your body and mind.

Relax, swim and enjoy every moment of your stay at the beach. The moment you get tired you can cool down with green coconut water. You are not likely to have many visitors around and that's the beauty of this beach.

Sunderbans

The Sunderbans a UNESCO World Heritage Site is located at the South eastern tip of the 24 Paraganas district about 110 km from Kolkata. It got its name from one of the mangrove plants known as Sundari (Heritiera Minor). Sunderbans are a part of the worlds largest delta, formed by the mighty rivers Ganga, Brahmaputra and Meghna.

Situated on the lower end of Gangetic West Bengal, the Sunderbans is criss-crossed by hundreds of creeks and tributaries. It is one of the most attractive and alluring places remaining on earth, a truly undiscovered paradise.

The Sunderbans is the largest single block of tidal, halophytic mangrove forests in the world. The name can be literally translated as beautiful jungle. The name may have been derived from the Sundari trees that are found in the Sunderbans. . It spans a vast area covering 4264 sq. km in India alone. It is the largest Tiger Reserve and National Park.

Gangasagar

"Sab tirath bar bar, Gangasagar ekbar", may we visit other holy places several times - but a visit once to Gangasagar is worth a life-time, keeping it in mind Hindus from all over the world, from Nepal, Thailand, West Indies, Canada, Japan, far from Australia and from every state of India reaches the confluence of Ganges at Sagar Sangam situated in southern part of West Bengal in India.

Gangasagar or Sagar Island is an island in the Ganges delta, lying on the continental shelf of Bay of Bengal about 100 kms (54 nautical miles) south of Kolkata. The island is large with an area of 224.3 kms. Gangasagar is a charming tourist destination, which attracts both pilgrims and adventure lovers.

Located on an island in the Sunderbans, Gangasagar offers the charms of an un-spoilt beach on the estuary of the river Ganges. Gangasagar offers acres of silver sand and clear blue sky, and the calm sea for visitors who would like to spend their weekend in tranquility.

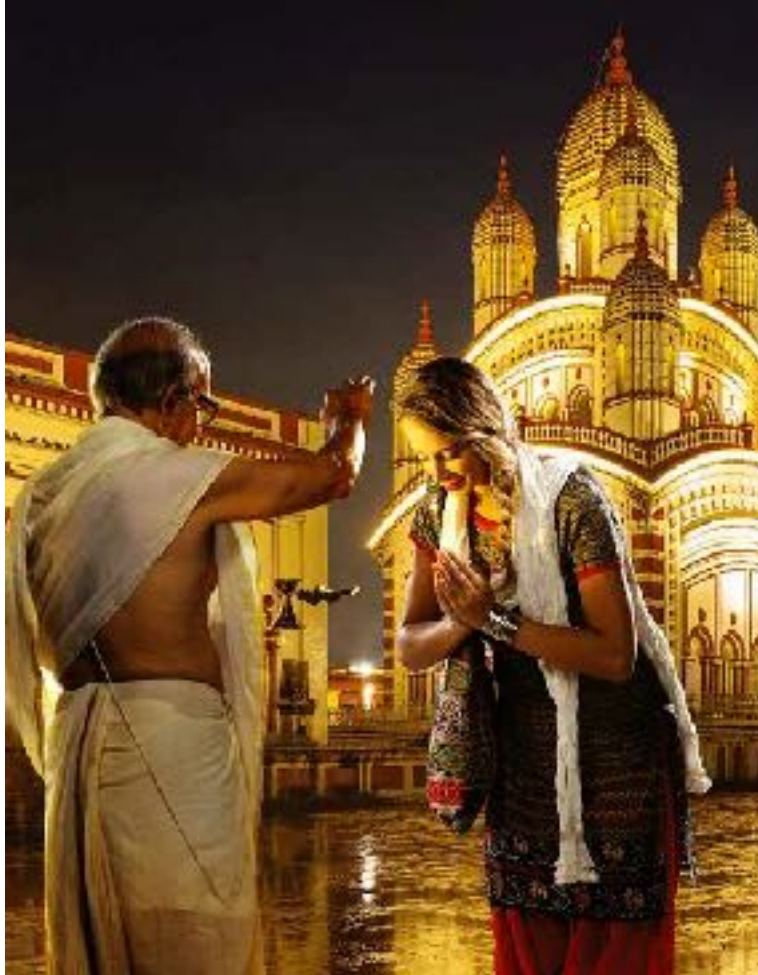

Belur Math

Belur Math or Belur Muth is the headquarters of the Ramakrishna Math and Mission, founded by Swami Vivekananda, a chief disciple of Ramakrishna Paramahansa. It is located on the west bank of Hooghly River, Belur, West Bengal.

It is a place of pilgrimage for people from all over the world professing different religious faiths. Even people not interested in religion come here for the peace it exudes. The serene campus of Belur Math on the Ganga includes temples dedicated to Sri Ramakrishna, Sri Sarada Devi and Swami Vivekananda, in which their relics are enshrined, and the main monastery of the Ramakrishna order.

The place has been sanctified by the stay of Swami Vivekananda and most of the monastic disciples of Sri Ramakrishna who spent several years here. Holy Mother Sri Sarada Devi also visited this place on several occasions. The room in which Swamiji attained Mahasamadhi has been preserved here.

Dakshineswar

Dakshineswar Kali temple is one of the holiest places of Eastern India. It is one of the must visit places in Kolkata. Dakshineswar is a Hindu temple located in Dakshineswar near Kolkata.

Situated on the eastern bank of the Hooghly River, the presiding deity of the temple is Bhavatarini. The temple was built by Rani Rashmoni, a philanthropist and a devotee of Kali in 1855. The temple is famous for its association with Ramakrishna, a mystic of 19th century Bengal. The temple compound, apart from the nine-spired main temple, contains a large courtyard surrounding the temple, with rooms along the boundary walls.

There are twelve shrines dedicated to Shiva (Kali's companion) along the riverfront, a temple to Radha-Krishna, a bathing ghat on the river and a shrine dedicated to Rani Rashmoni. Nahavat-Khana, the chamber in the northwestern corner just beyond the last of the Shiva temples, is where Ramakrishna spent a considerable part of his life.

Kalighat

Kalighat was a Ghat sacred to Kali on the old course of the Hooghly river in the city of Calcutta. The name Calcutta is said to have been derived from the word Kalighat. The river over a period of time has moved away from the temple. The temple is now on the banks of a small canal called Adi Ganga which connects to the Hooghly.

The Adi Ganga was the original course of the river Hooghly (the Ganges). Hence the name Adi Ganges. Kalighat is regarded as one of the 51 Shakti Peethas of India, where the various parts of Satis body are said to have fallen, in the course of Shivas Rudra Tandava.

Kalighat represents the site where the toes of the right foot of Dakshayani or Sati fell. Legend has it that a devotee discovered a luminant ray of light coming from the girathi river bed, and upon investigating its source came upon a piece of stone carved in the form of a human toe.

Murshidabad

The last capital city of independent Bengal before British rule was named after Nawab Murshid Quli Khan, the Dewan of Bengal, Bihar and Odisha.

Situated on the banks of the Bhagirathi, it is a city of splendour and is famous for its silk. It was made the capital of Bengal in 1717. The British shifted the capital to Kolkata in 1773.

Plassey (Palashi), where the historic battle was fought in 1757 between Nawab Siraj-ud-Doula and Lord Clive of the East India Company, is only 40 km south of Murshidabad.

Bishnupur

Bishnupur is a town in the Bankura District of West Bengal and located at about 132 km from Kolkata. It is famous for its terracotta temples and Baluchari sarees. The town has a glorious past that is reflected in its rich architecture, music and handicrafts such as pottery and weaving. It prospered in the 17th and early 18th centuries.

Ruled by a line of Hindu Rajas of the Malla dynasty, Bishnupur developed a unique form of architecture and has perhaps the most brilliant and detailed terracotta work in Eastern India that has withstood the ravages of time.

The Terracotta tiles depict stories from Ramayana and Mahabharata. The Temples like the Shyam Ray Temple, the twin shrines of Jorbangla and the Rasmancha are a must visit.

Apart from its heritage, Bishnupur is also known for its traditional handloom sarees. Pottery, artifacts and even jewellery made of terracotta in Bishnupur are also very popular.

Tarapith

Tarapith is famous for the temple of Tara Ma and Sadhan Pith of Sadhak Bamakhyapa. Tarapith, a holy religious place, is situated in a village Tarapur under Rampurhat Police Station of Rampurhat Sub-Division in the district of Birbhum. It so called because the eyeball (Tara) of Sati fell here. Others say that Tarapith is not a pith but the place owes its sanctity to the fact that the Sage Basistha here worshipped the Goddess Sati in the form of Tara.

The Goddess Tara is a form of Kali with two hands, garlanded with snakes and adorned in sacred threads. But the Temple is dedicated to the destructive aspect of Shiva, which takes the form of Kali. She requires sacrifice daily to satisfy her blood lust so every morning goats are sacrifices on the altar of the Temple.

The deity of Tara is enshrined inside the temple. It is a special temple for more reasons than one. The nearby cremation ground makes this a quite rare temple, especially considering its surroundings.

Hooghly

The district of Hooghly is just 47 km north of Kolkata and is steeped in history and heritage. Dotted with several small but important towns, the district is testimony to the rule of foreign settlers-the British and Portuguese at Hooghly, the Dutch at Chinsurah, the French at Chandannagar, and the Germans and Austrians at Bhadreswar.

The Portuguese were the first to settle here in 1537, but were defeated by Shah Jahan in 1632. The British East India Company then followed and set up a factory here in 1651.

Chandannagar (Chandannagar) was once a French colony and is still under the influence of French language and culture. Chinsurah was a Dutch settlement from 1656 to 1825. It was later exchanged by the Dutch for the British-held Indonesian island of Sumatra in 1825. The Hooghly, as the Ganga River is called here, dominates the landscape and people use ferries to cross from one town to another.

Cooch Behar

Once a princely State, Cooch Behar is known for its fine climate, natural freshness, and beauty. During the 11th and 12th Century AD, the Pala-Senas ruled Cooch Behar. The sculptures and coins of the Sultanate and the Mughal Periods, and the temples and mosques of the medieval and late medieval periods reveal that the ancient kingdom of Kamrup played a role in the development of the present Cooch Behar.

The main attraction in Cooch Behar is the palace of the Koch king Maharaja Nripendra Narayan. Designed to resemble the classical European style of the Italian Renaissance, this magnificent palace was built by the Maharaja in 1887.

Cooch Behar is also famous for large water bodies. Among them the Rasik Bill is famous for a huge population of migratory birds that assemble here every year. The Forest Department has built accommodation at this site to meet the demands of a growing number of tourists interested in ornithology.

Howrah

Once known as the Manchester of Bengal, this District has a number of places of tourist interest, a few of which are the most visited sites in the country and all located in and around the Howrah Municipal Corporation.

Howrah, the second largest city of West Bengal and twin of Kolkata is said to have a rich history that dates back to 500 years. The name itself is possibly derived from a village named Harirah which was located in or about the site of modern day Howrah City.

Venetian explorer Ceasare Federici was the first European who mentioned a place called Bator in his journal in 1578 AD which is identifiable with the modern day place around the Howrah City.

The Howrah Railway Terminus came up in 1854 and in 1862 the first municipal administration started functioning though the modern day Corporation as we see it now came into being in 1980 when the Howrah Act, 1980 was implemented.

Chinatown of Kolkata

Chinese, The Traders, Buddhist Monks and imperial envoys from China used to come to the different kingdoms of the Indian subcontinent regularly since the fifth century AD.

The first record of travel from China is provided in the travelogue of Faxian (Fa-Hien) who visited Tampralīpta, in what is now Tamluk in the 5th century AD. Many words in Bengali can be attributed to Chinese influences.

For example, chini, the Bengali word for "sugar" comes from the word for China, and words like Chinamati for porcelain china hint at Chinese influences.

Jalpaiguri

Rarely can one find a place like Jalpaiguri that is so potentially rich in tourism. But a major part of it still remains to be exploited. Turbulent rivers battling out of the steep gorges, the vast stretches of forest cover, the undulating span of Tea Estates and the panoramic grandeur of the Himalayas are only a few jewels that made the British ground their roots deep into the heart of this land. Just drive around or take a hike, never will your eyes feel to rest. If a tourist is a nature lover or an admirer of Wild Life there cannot be a better place than this for him. One can run wild in the various Sanctuaries, National Parks & Tiger Reserves that are on offer.

Jalpaiguri, this narrow stretch of land lying between the Sikkim - Darjeeling Himalayas and Gangetic West Bengal has more than often evoked a sense of both eerie and romanticism in many a heart. Since the early British Rule, A major stretch of area is bordered in the north by Bhutan and hence the name - DOOARS/DUARS which mean - the Door to Bhutan.

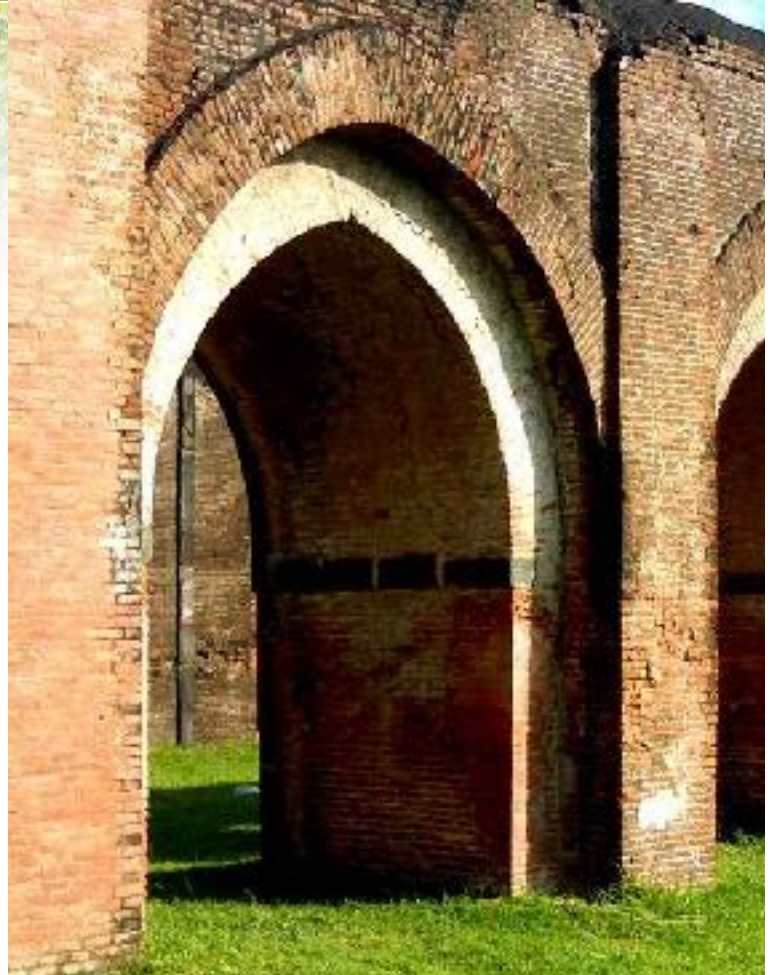

Malda

The gateway to North Bengal, Malda, with its rich history and heritage, is one of the most famous tourist destinations of West Bengal, nestled at the confluence of the Mahananda and Kalindi rivers. Malda town, with all its grace, adds to the beauty of Bengal.

Malda was previously known as English Bazaar. It got that name from the English factory that was established here in 1771. From Malda, you can visit Gaur and Pandua. Gaur was the capital of three dynasties of ancient Bengal - the Buddhist Palas, the Hindu Senas and the Muslim Nawabs.

Pandua, once the alternate seat of power to Gaur, has the third largest concentration of Muslim monuments in Bengal.

Historical monuments include the mosque Jami Masjid (1566) and the landmark Nimasari tower across the river. The Malda Museum has a great collection of the regions architectural and anthropological specimens.

Bankura

Bankura has gained wide appeal as a popular tourist destination. The district can legitimately take pride in having a wide range of spots attracting tourists for a variety of reasons ranging from arts and architecture, terracotta temples, dense virgin forests, hills and the scenic spots at Mukutmonipur etc. Since ancient times, it is popularly known as Rarh area in Bengal.

Bankura district, falling under Eastern Chhotanagpur Plateau, looks like handpicked by Mother Nature and is blessed with old brown hills, murmuring rivers, ancient temples- all bearing testimony to a rich culture and tradition.

Bishnupur deserves a special mention in that the town hosts a good many temples like Madan Mohan temple, Shyam Roy Temple and a short distance away, at Jairambati the famous temple dedicated to Sarada Devi for crores of devotees of the Ramakrishna Monastic Order. The town also has its own distinct musical tradition known as Bishnupur Gharana.

Purulia

Purulia is a land of natural beauty. The lush green landscape, verdant hills and dense forests make it a perfect tourist destination that gives a rustic ambience and peaceful surroundings to weary city dwellers. This westernmost district of West Bengal unravels her untapped mystery and wondrous beauty.

The landscape is rocky and undulating. The tourism of Purulia centres round its hills, forests as well as its archeological excavations and the relics of ancient buildings and temples.

Tribal ethos enriches the mystic charm and natural beauty of this land of red soil and red blooms of Palash. The region is home to different tribal communities like Santhals, Kurmis, Kherias-Sabars to name a few. Song and dance are an intrinsic part in the lives of the tribal people.

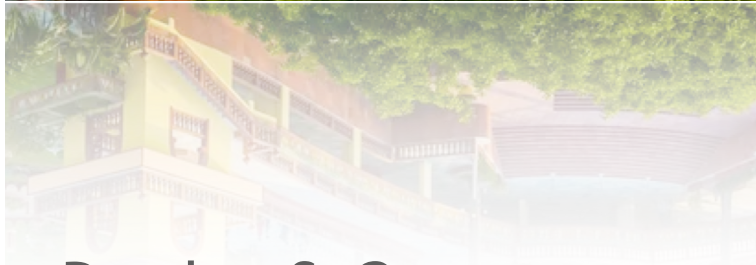

Mayapur

Mayapur is laid-back pilgrim city with special significance for followers of Lord Krishna.

It's regarded as the the birthplace of Shri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, a 15th century Vedic spiritual leader belived to be an avatar of Lord Krishna.

His teachings were revived and brought to the west in the 20th century by Srila Prabhupada, who founded the International Society for Krishna Consciousness (ISKCON) and spread the "Hare Krishna movement" throughout the world.

The headquarters of ISKCON is located in Mayapur, along with a magnificent temple complex dedicated to Srila Prabhupada.

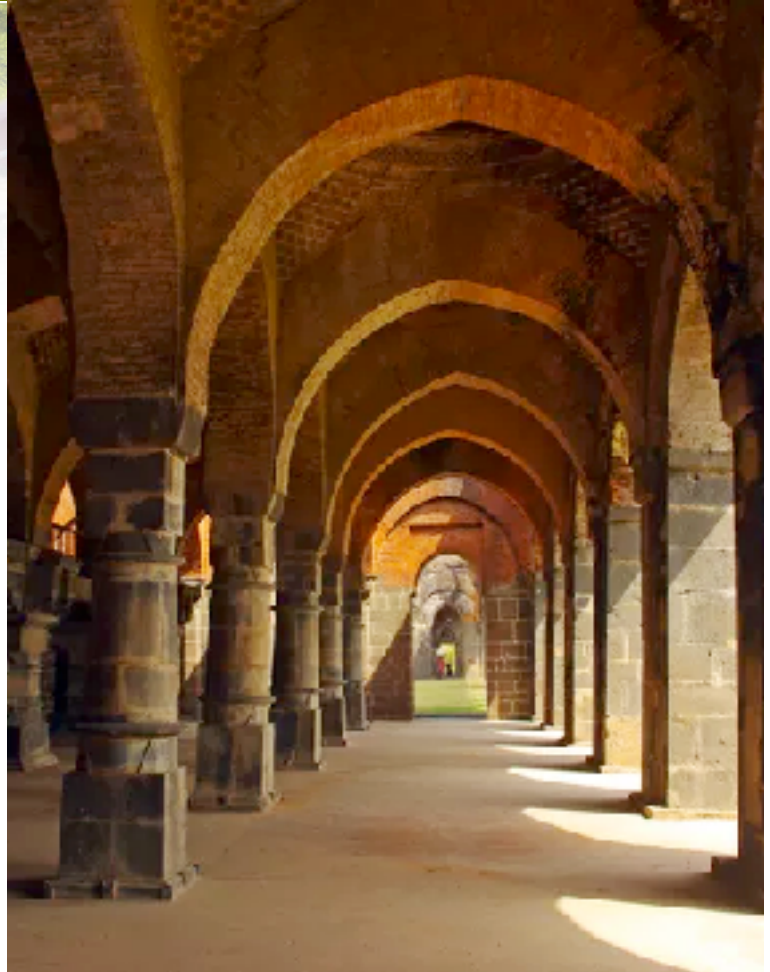

Pandua & Gaur

Spread throughout Pandua and Gaur, in West Bengal's Malda district, are the fascinating ruins of the former capitals of Muslim nawabs (rulers) dating back to the 13th-16th centuries.

Most of the ruins are mosques, including the 14th century Adina Masjid in Pandua. It's one of the largest mosques in India and it contains the tomb of its builder, Sikander Shah.

It is located about 330 kilometres north of Kolkata.

Barrackpore

History buffs should also head to Barrackpore, where the British set up their first military barrack or cantonment in India in 1772, to explore some relics of the Raj era. After the British gained control of India, the area was transformed into a retreat for the Kolkata-based governors-general and viceroys.

Barrackpore started losing its sheen after the British capital was shifted to Delhi. However, the heritage buildings and park were recently restored, and a museum constructed.

Notably, the city was home to some important members of the Indian independence movement. In fact, Barrackpore was the scene of an incident widely credited with starting the Indian Rebellion of 1857.

Mirik

Located on the banks of a huge lake, the hill town of Mirik adds to North Bengal's bounty. Amidst the Himalayan Valley, Mirik has more to offer than just beautiful mountains and lakes.

From boating experiences for your romantic getaway to temples for the faithful to orchids and gardens for the nature's child, West Bengal tourism is incomplete without Mirik.

The well populated, yet not over crowded town also offers viewpoints for those quiet moments of introspection and traditional Indian Bazaars to splurge. Going to Mirik for the perfect hill station getaway is an idea you'll never go wrong in.

Durgapur

Often touted as the Steel Capital of East India, Durgapur is the embodiment of the quintessential Bengali town. With a total population of less than half a million, Durgapur is in the Burdwan District of West Bengal, on the bank of the Damodar River. It is about 170 kms from the city of Kolkata.

Durgapur is the perfect amalgamation of a metro's energy and a small town's charm. The place is brimming with temples, old-world markets, parks and even a barrage.

Located in the heart of West Bengal, this industrial town has more to offer than just authentic food and a few tourist spots. If you are looking for an authentic Indian getaway, Durgapur is the place to be

Bagdogra

Bagdogra is a small hill station town resting at the foothills of the Himalayas, in the Darjeeling district of West Bengal. It is often regarded as the gateway town to North-East India and the Himalayas.

Bagdogra is famous for its tea estates and the abundance of greenery. The town becomes mesmerising during monsoons as you get to see the clouds hovering around the peaks of the mountains.

Bagdogra is a quiet and beautiful destination that is ideal for nature lovers and anyone looking for a refreshing and peaceful holiday.

Bagdogra has been blessed with an abundance of nature and greenery. River Teesta flows through this town, making it an excellent spot for river rafting. The city is surrounded by lush green tea gardens and serves as a perfect getaway for nature lovers.

Asansol

"Land of Black Diamond, The City of Brotherhood".

Asansol is the second biggest city in West Bengal, after Kolkata. It is also one of the busiest commercial centres of India and the most populated city in West Bengal. It is located approximately 200 km from Kolkata, West Bengal's capital. The city's economy is primarily dependant on its coal and steel industries and railways.

Asansol was ranked 11th among the fastest-growing cities in India. It is known for some significant religious spots, heritage temples and scenic parks. 'Asan' refers to a species of tree that is usually found growing on the banks of River Damodar. 'Sol' translates to land. Asansol has been coined as a combination of these two terms.

Bardhaman

"For the believer and the skeptic and the historian and the nature lover"

With a convergence of religion, nature, man-made marvels and the proverbial old world charm, Bardhaman is the ideal fit for a weekend getaway.

Take a group comprising the most diverse people. Even with nothing else being common, they will all agree on one thing- Bardhaman's Splendor. Perhaps the only place in India that will manage to appease every mind and mindset, this Unique Bengali town has an air of its own.

Hazarduari Palace

As the name suggests, Hazarduari Palace has 1000 doors. However, 100 amongst these doors are false so as to confuse any predator from escaping. Hence, the palace only has 900 real doors. Formerly known as Bara Kothi, this grand royal residence is located in the campus of Kila Nizamat, which is the site of the old fort of Murshidabad in West Bengal.

Cooch Behar Palace

Also known as Victor Jubilee Palace, Cooch Behar Palace is one of the most elegant palaces in West Bengal. It is located in the city of Cooch Behar and was built during the reign of Maharaja Nripendra Narayan in 1887. Being inspired from the Buckingham Palace, it is natural for this structural beauty to be a significant landmark in the city.

Cooch Behar Palace is always commended for its architecture in classical western style. It is also noted for its surrounding beauty in the form of gardens and lawns and hence, it is definitely a frame worth seeing. Even though most articles and precious objects in various rooms and halls of the palace are lost, Cooch Behar Palace still hasn't lost its charm and stands tall as an important historical monument.

Marble Palace

Marble Palace is a 19th-century mansion in northern Kolkata and was built by Raja Rajendra Mullick, a wealthy Bengali merchant who was very passionate about collecting fine works of artistry.

Today, the mansion is one of the best-preserved houses of the 19th century in Kolkata and serves as a home to the descendants of Raja Rajendra Mullick. The magnificence and glamour of the palace lie in its marble walls, floors and sculptures.

Another peculiar feature about this mansion is that it is built in a neoclassical style with a touch of a traditional Bengali courtyard. Marble Palace also houses several western sculptures, pieces of Victorian furniture and numerous artefacts that depict the rich art and history of the country.

Jhargram Palace

Jhargram Palace is situated in Jhargram district of West Bengal and is one of the most beautiful palaces in the state. The architecture of this palace is a cross between Italian, Islamic and Bengali architecture, which gives it a very elegant and royal grandeur.

This 16th century palace was built by Sarveshwar Singh during the 16th century.

Surrounded by gardens and beautiful lawns, Jhargram Palace is a must-visit spot if you are looking to explore and learn about the history of the place.

Kathgola

Although Kathgola Palace isn't as grand as many other palaces in West Bengal, it still holds a very significant part in history. It was here William Watts and Walsh met Mir Jafar, three days after the Battle of Plassey in 1757.

This four-storeyed palatial palace is located in Kathgola Gardens, which is one of the most beautiful gardens in Kathgola, and is spread over an area of 30 acres. It is believed that black roses were cultivated in Kathgola Gardens; however, now one can only find mango trees and certain other shrubs.

Nashipur Rajbari

Nashipur Rajbari, also known as Nashipur Rajbati, is a grand palace in Nashipur and is adjacent to the palace built by Raja Debi Singha. This 19th-century palace was built by Raja Kirti Chandra Singha Bahadur.

Nashipur Rajbari is very similar to Hazarduari Palace and is often referred to as a miniature version of Hazarduari Palace. It is a very important historical monument on account of its relation with Debi Singha, who was the tax collector under the British and was a very influential person amongst the people of East India Company.

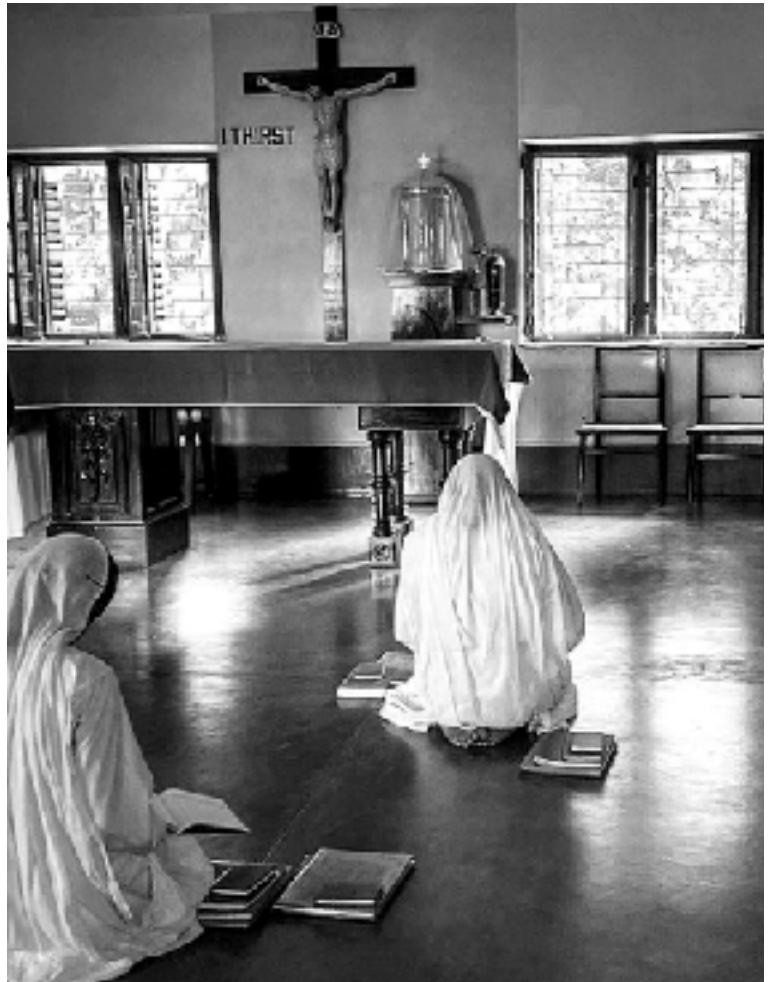

Mother Teresa House - Kolkata

Mother Teresa is the epitome of peace, love, and happiness. When she arrived in India, she started as a teacher but she was gutted by the widespread poverty in Calcutta, and this led to the establishment of the "The Missionaries of Charity" in 1950. Their purpose is to aid mankind with the oath of "Wholehearted and free service to the poorest of the poor".

The house consists of 4,500 members of the congregation known as sisters who have unconditionally dedicated their lives to assist the crippled, the addicts, the ones who are mentally challenged or are dying, former prostitutes, abandoned children and those who have fallen prey to natural disasters.

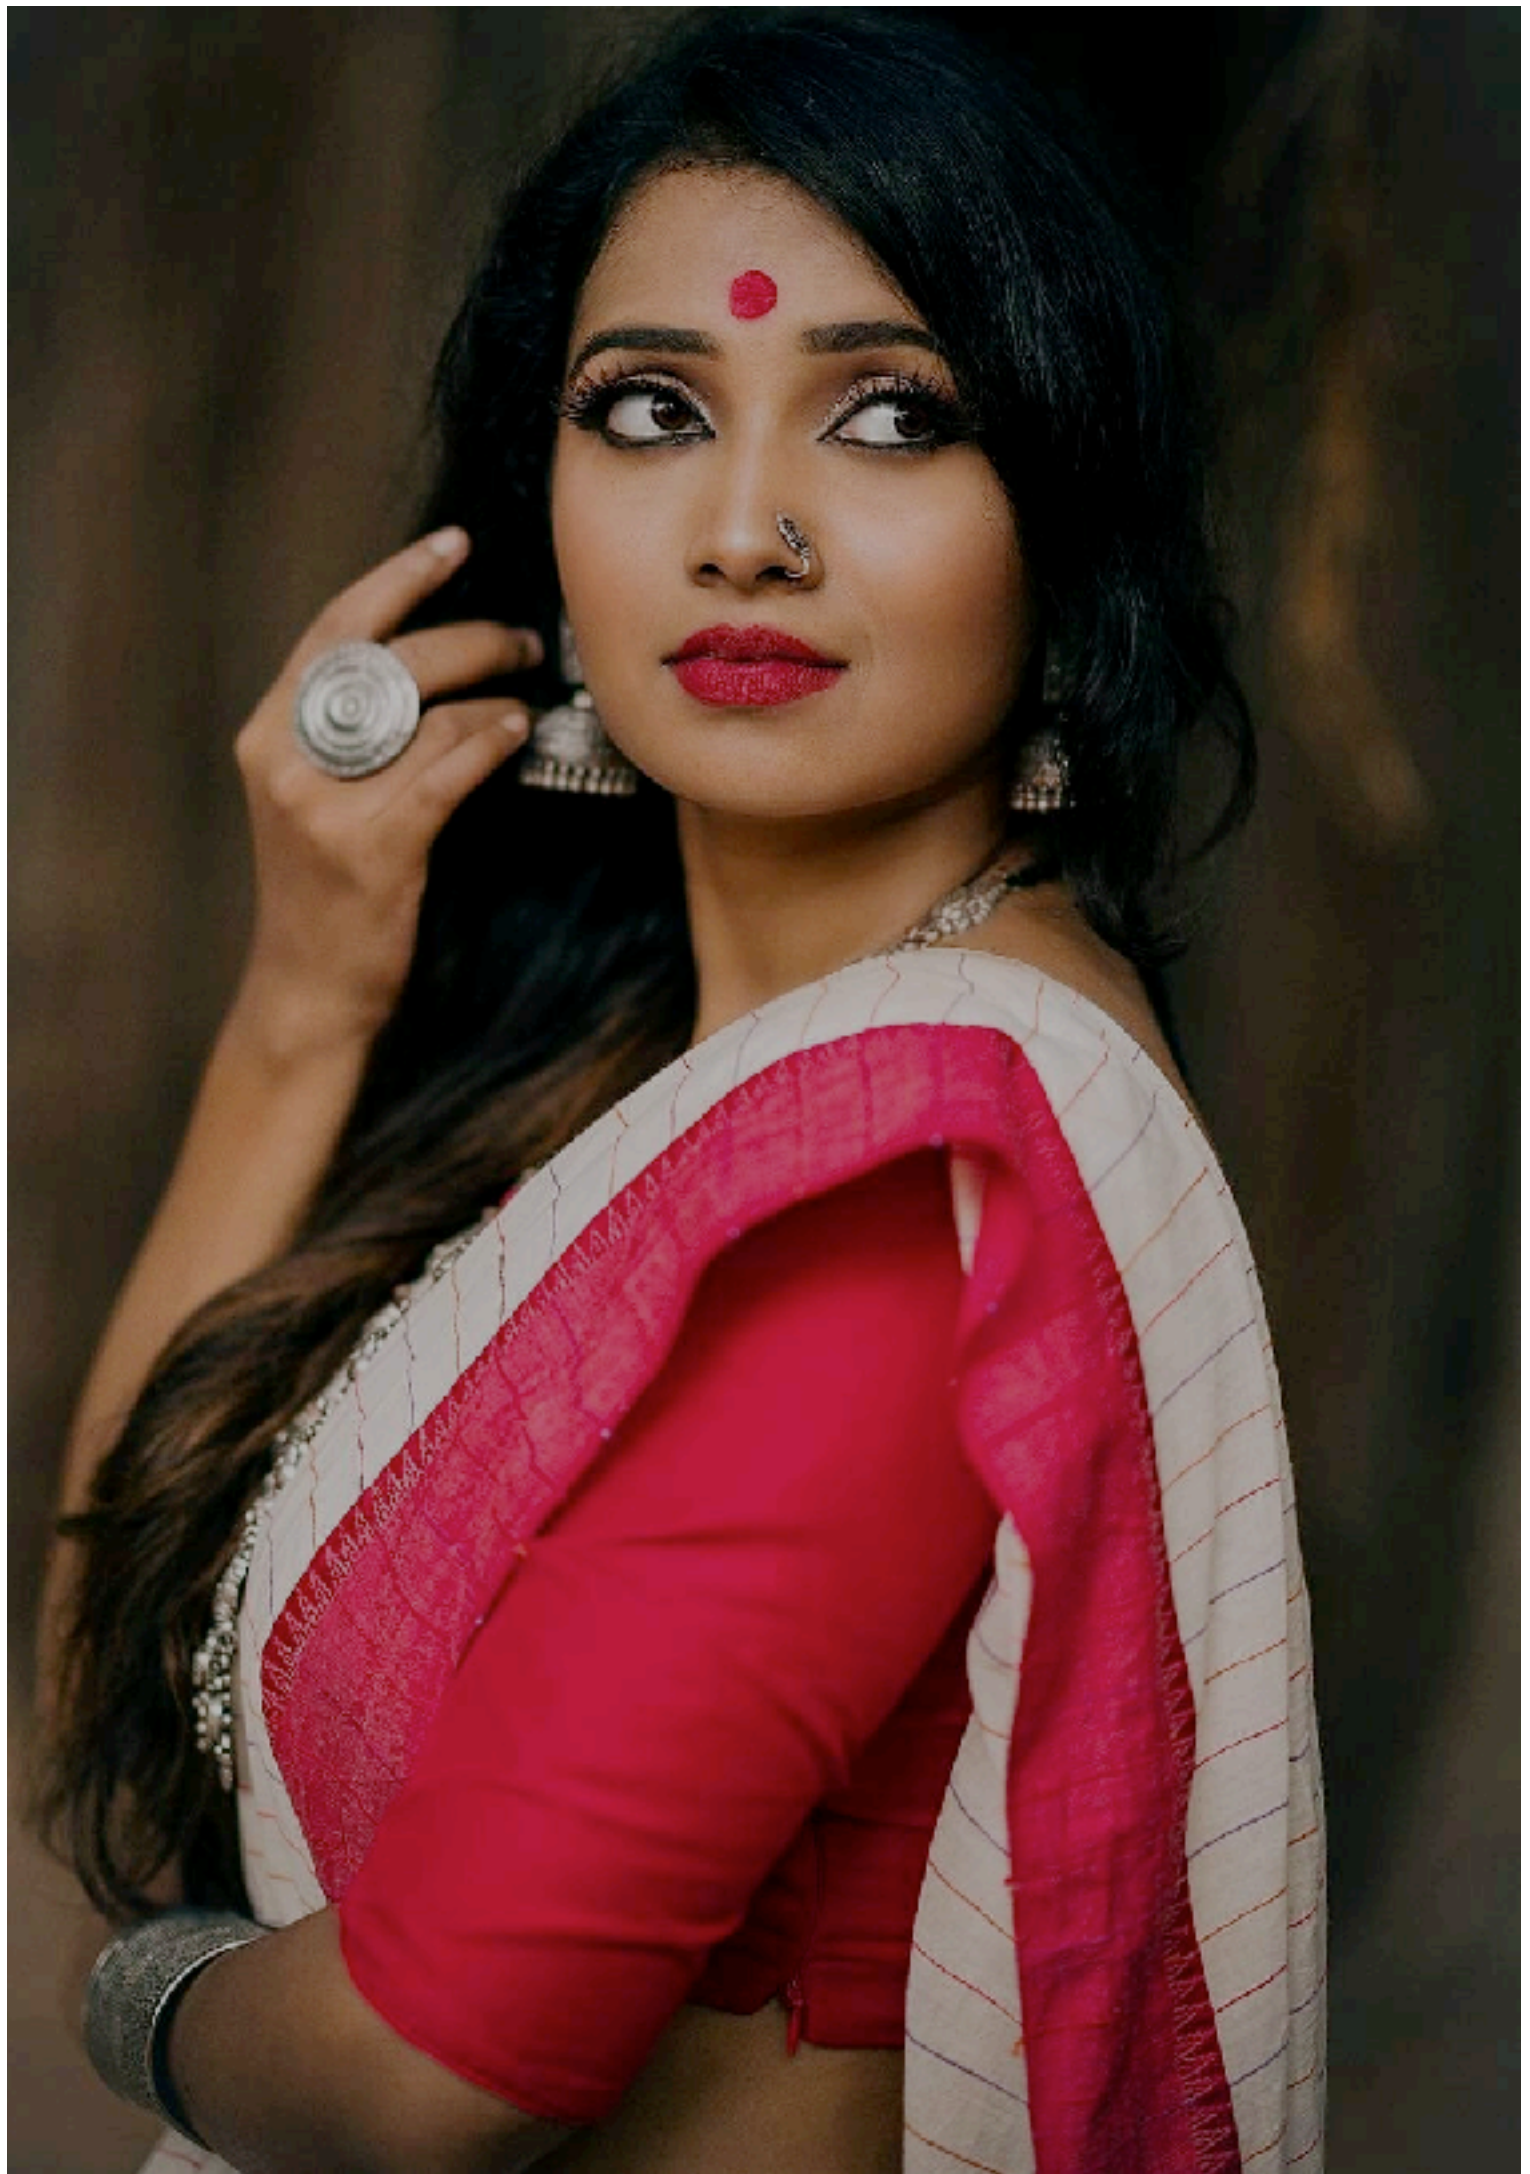

Mother spent over 40 years of her life in a small room with a metal bed and a wooden desk and a few notable items like her like a cross and wreath of thorns on the wall. It is indeed humbling to see a room where she peacefully passed away on that very bed on the 5th of September 1997.

Sunderban Cruise

At the tip of the Ganges is a mystic mangrove forest on the myriad of islands. Impenetrable mangrove forests, winding rivers, Lush Sundari trees, water changing its colour at every creek from muddy river to emerald blue sea, narrow creeks to several miles wide rivers, where the man and man eaters eat fish to survive, crabs climb the tree, tiger swim long distances and mighty crocodile bask in the sun.

This is a wonderland indeed and to be explored through waterways only. From the north to the south east to west, the cruise transverses the entire area anchoring at the most exotic waters.

GENERAL INFORMATION

Welcome to West Bengal

West Bengal is a state in eastern India, between the Himalayas and the Bay of Bengal. Its capital, Kolkata (formerly Calcutta), retains architectural and cultural remnants of its past as an East India Company trading post and capital of the British Raj.

The city's colonial landmarks include the government buildings around B.B.D. Bagh Square, and the iconic Victoria Memorial, dedicated to Britain's queen.

People

The majority of West Bengal's people live in rural villages. Of those living in urban areas, more than half reside in greater Kolkata. Of the different religions, Hinduism claims the adherence of more than three-fourths of the population. Most of the remainder is Muslim.

Bengali, the main language of the state, is spoken by much of the population. Other languages include Hindi, Santali, Urdu (primarily the language of Muslims), and Nepali (spoken largely in the area of Darjiling). A small number of people speak Kurukh, the language of the Oraon indigenous group.

Attire

The traditional Bengali attire for men is dhoti and kurta (a sleeved vest) and for women, it is sari or salwar-kameez. Though these attires are still dominant in the rural areas, the urban people have almost fully adopted to the western attires. The only exceptions are the religious ceremonies, when they can be seen clad in their traditional costumes.

Cultural Life

Bengalis have long fostered art, literature, music, and drama. The visual arts have, by tradition, been based mainly on clay modeling, terra-cotta work, and decorative painting.

Bengali literature dates to before the 12th century. The Chaitanya movement, an intensely emotional form of Hinduism inspired by the medieval saint Chaitanya (1485–1533), shaped the subsequent development of Bengali poetry until the early 19th century, when contact with the West sparked a vigorous creative synthesis. The modern period has produced, among others, the Nobel Prize-winning poet Rabindranath Tagore (1861–1941), whose contribution still dominates the Indian literary scene.

Climate

West Bengal's climate is transitional between tropical wet-dry in the southern portions and humid subtropical in the north. Throughout West Bengal there is a pronounced seasonal disparity in rainfall.

Jaldapara & Gorumara Wildlife

Duration: 07 Nights / 08 Days

Places: Kolkata | Bagdogra | Gorumara | Jaldapara NP | Bagdogra | Kolkata

Not many know that there is a lot more to West Bengal than the rich culture, lip-smacking food and magnificent temples. This eastern state of India is blessed with plenty of exotic wildlife. Our wildlife tour to Jaldapara and Gorumara national parks comprises of 7 nights and 8 days itinerary that offers you a great chance to see several animals and birdlife species. These include the one horned rhinos, elephants, gaur, spotted deers, Pallas's fishing eagle, jungle fowl, peafowl and partridges. The tour's specially designed itinerary lets you watch the best of West Bengal wildlife from close quarters.

Jaldapara is one among the popular forests of Dooars. It is best known for the Jaldapara Wildlife Sanctuary, which was declared a sanctuary in 1943 to protect and preserve the myriad of flora and fauna. This sanctuary is located on the foothills of Eastern Himalayas on the banks of River Torsa.

Jaldapara offers a variety of activities to the visitors. One can visit the sanctuary to have a look at the mammals, amphibians, reptiles and birds of many kinds. Apart from the wildlife tourism, you can take a day off for the forest visit and enjoy the elephant safaris as you explore the forest. Jeep safaris are also available. One can explore Madarihat which is the main town near the forest.
